Board members sought to serve on Little Elm's CDC Four Community Development Corporation positions open

LITTLE ELM (August 18, 2015) The Little Elm Community Development Corporation, a non-profit, tax-exempt corporation that provides leadership and funding for projects that enhance and preserve Little Elm's quality of life, is accepting applications for membership on their Board of Directors, says Parks and Recreation Director Chad Hyde.

"We're looking for four community volunteers to oversee and administer the use of funds for a fairly wide variety of projects that benefit the residents of Little Elm," he said.

The four open board positions are filled by Town Council appointment.

The Little Elm Community Development Corporation is chartered by the State of Texas as a 4B Corporation, so named for the section of the enabling legislation that created the CDC structure at the municipal level.

The legislation which authorized CDCs in Texas specifies that funds can be used for, among other things, land, buildings, equipment, facilities, expenditures and improvements for professional and amateur sports facilities, park facilities and events, entertainment, convention and tourist facilities.

In Little Elm, CDC funds are used primarily for construction projects, parks development, special events and community improvement activities that help create an atmosphere which embraces the Town as a center for family entertainment and amusement.

Applications for the positions may be found on the Town of Little Elm website on the Boards, Commissions & Corporations page under the Government tab of the Town's home page or by visiting:

Interested individuals must have been residents of Little Elm for a minimum of one year, be of high moral character and be willing to devote time, effort, expertise and energy to the position.

Deadline for submitting applications for consideration is 5 p.m., Friday, Sept. 4. Individuals who qualify for consideration will undergo interviews with a panel which includes the Mayor, a member of the Town Council and a member of the CDC. Interviews will occur on Thursday, Sept. 10 starting at 4 p.m. Each qualifying applicant will be notified of their specific interview time by the CDC staff.
